Images of Growth . . .

A vast crowd of freshmen faces awaits the beginning, the long, but rewarding hours of study and research, the fun and nonsense of initiation, and the reflection of creative activity—four segments of one year. The vignettes etched are duplicated year after year in the realm of higher education. Four years and their images: what do they have in common? They have themselves, for they are inseparable. In the 1960 Index we are concerned with both, yet the image remains much longer than the action. Are they important? Yes, they are for many reasons: they mirror the ideas, attitudes, and expressions of four years of college life. Four distinctive years filled with myriad activities, social events, and studies. The object of the 1960 Index is not to represent just these events.

Growth is all inclusive. In its abstraction it covers territory not given in any classification, nor completely defined in any one instance. Growth springs from the seed of knowledge, and our book takes in one year of experiences—in both instances, the beginning. For growth should never stop; ideally it is unending.

We have concerned ourselves primarily with the activities of the American group called the college student. We have portrayed his thoughts and activities on the campus and in the community. Most important, we have captured many glimpses and aspects of the educational process. Our endeavor is but a composite of many images, by no means complete. But we have caught the experience of the strange scented realm of a scientific laboratory, the relaxing comfort of study in a dormitory lounge, and the thoughtful research in the library stacks; even dipping into the world of artistic expression, we have glimpsed creativity. From Fell Gate to the Centennial Building, from the steps of Milner Library to the classroom, we have tried to cover all of the areas of learning illustrating the essence of these four years—education. Mirrored against the routine yet everchanging and challenging element of study are the people and activities necessary to complete the images. We have shown the student in action and in activity; we have pictured him in a group and have also distilled him from the mass. We have attempted to illustrate the learning process as one of prime importance. Growth in wisdom and understanding is the real purpose of college.

A well adjusted person is not just an intellectual, for this fusion is where all the branches of the seed, the areas of growth, physical and social, must work and develop together. Illinois State Normal University has an obligation to further the education of our youth. We have presented our Images, hoping that growth is unending . . . The result is now in your hands.

Create unity in the uninitiated

The world of a college student: a kaleidoscope of the many multi-colored facets of life and its influences. Not only the immediate campus but also the surrounding areas have much to do with the formation of thoughts, ideas, actions, classroom techniques, and practices of the student who will soon be leaving an institution long dedicated to the teaching profession.

The fundamental purpose of a college student is the development of the mind through academic pursuits. Lofty as this ideal may be, this development, it is hoped, is a gradual growth which will take place in varying degrees over a time span of four years. The time is also filled with social pursuits such as dating, recreational hours, and athletics. The academic, the social, the physical, and the religious are areas of growth which are dependent upon each other for complete fulfillment. Many opportunities are afforded both on campus and off for the development of the student. From the time a student enters the University until the time he leaves, he knows that he is an integral part of a community unrestricted by geographical bounds. The student may seek the solitude of his room or of a quiet spot on campus, or he may search for a crowd of people to share his interests. In either case, he is an important design in an integral pattern.

The activities, of course, vary with the interest of each person. For all students there is, during the first week, the usual endless waiting in lines for registration, pictures, fee receipts, tickets, and books. For the new students, many additional activities are planned especially for Freshman Orientation Week such as a watermelon picnic, a movie-sing, and an all-freshman get-acquainted mixer. A formative time in a freshman's life is the first week of college. The hours and days are occupied with meetings, tests, and tours, while the nights are filled with the exciting experience of meeting new people and doing new things. Close association with the old and the new embody, by the end of the week, a unified group who will soon begin the classes of the year, and take a new identity.

As the year progresses, numerous other activities enhance growth in the form of new interests, a display of personal talents, or relaxation from everyday routines. Dad's Day welcomes an opportunity for dads to come to the campus and be students themselves for one day, with the possibility of some lucky father's winning the football used in the first kick-off. Homecoming week end is one of the busiest and most exciting events of the entire year. Old and new get acquainted as well as join together in the piercing spirit of fight for "good old Normal." Talent is not overlooked but is displayed at every opportunity, especially when it is time for the Spring Carnival and the Stunt Show, when everyone is given an opportunity to review the rampant but original creative talents of clever students. Rival Wesleyan University also adds an ingredient of zest to our campus when we clash with its teams in the inter-city rival football and basketball games. No matter what the interests of an individual might be, there is some activity to suit him.

If the programs on campus do not always appeal to students, the offerings, ranging from the formal to the informal, of the Bloomington-Normal area do. Many hours of pleasure can be found in the bowling alley, a public swimming pool, the golf course, the movie theatres, or the public riding stables, all of which may be used by University students. Oftentimes students walk a short distance to Normal or dash to Bloomington to take advantage of what the two towns have to offer, even if it is just to do the routine task of laundering at Mary Ann's or to mail a letter at the post office. Also the cultural aspects of the area are important for social growth. One of the more serious activities is attending the Bloomington-Normal Symphony, which presents six symphonies yearly. Students participate in these programs both as spectators and participants.

Integration between the townspeople and the college students easily takes place. Students are dependent upon the town for religious satisfaction and for consumer goods. The townspeople, in turn, rely on the college population for enrichment of thought as well as for economic reinforcement.

and stuffed animals presents many problems. Living with as many as four hundred people in a dormitory is quite different from that in an off-campus house of ten. In either case, close friendships are developed as people share friends, interests, classes, and even clothes! Adjustments have to be made as individuals learn the important lesson of conciliation. Although most fast-paced activity takes place on campus, those living off the immediate grounds manage to stay "in the swing of things" by actively participating in many of the varied projects the University has to offer.

The college student is definitely not removed from the world of religion. On Sunday mornings, the students gather with the townspeople to attend the church of their choice in the serene atmosphere of spiritual elation. It is quite evident when the college people are not on campus, for then there are many empty spaces in the various places of worship. The student body listed over thirty-seven different types of worship ranging from Mennonite, to Protestant, to Catholic, to Jewish, and to the Moslem faiths. The importance of religion should not be underestimated in the ever-changing yet basic world of the college student.

The reader may ask, "Where does all of this education end?" The answer is complex, but simply stated. Academic enrichment is the main goal. The University is fortunate enough to have both old and new classroom buildings to accommodate all undergraduate and graduate students. Time spent in the classroom is supplemented by hours of study combined with social companionship in any of the places where students study, for knowledge or exposure to an experience is a means toward the end: mastery of a subject.

The eventual goal is to become a teacher, a good teacher. Again the reader may ask, "What is a good teacher?" The answer is somewhat abstract, yet certain tangible qualities can be detected. The good teacher is creative, using techniques to motivate and stimulate; resourceful, finding new matter to enhance old material; and responsible, realizing the importance of duty and obligation as a member of a community. As Henry Adams once said, "A teacher affects eternity." Invariably do the college student and the townspeople affect one another: learning to live successfully, learning to deal with the myriad eclipses of life more intricate than even those of college, and learning to live with one's fellow man. ## ... a vision for the future

In the library, where books and knowledge are collected from ages past, the student can absorb the genius and understanding of ancient and contemporary man. In search of many answers, sometimes, in an unexpected book, on a torn and obscure page, a succinct verbal expression may explain the vast meaning of this all to the pondering student. As Joseph Addison says, "Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime destroy, no enemy can alienate, no despotism can enslave. At home a friend, abroad an introduction, in solitude a solace, and in society an ornament. It chastens vice, it guides virtue, it gives, at once, grace and government to genius. Without it what is man? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage."

A bell of tradition . . .

The hour of anticipation approaches...

A cold, damp wind rushed down to greet thousands of alums and students who inaugurated the 1959 Homecoming and remained throughout the entire week end. The natural elements were unvictorious, however, in squelching spirit and enthusiasm of the celebration, which is for many the most important of all college events.

Spirits were kindled Friday night as the bonfire was ignited and flames rippled through the chilly evening air. The heat and enthusiasm of the fire spread to the Student Union where music swelled from the ballroom, the place of the Red Feather Dance. Joy was apparent everywhere as alums wandered about the campus looking for familiar faces and landmarks to recall years past. The hammering sound had barely ceased to echo as students cleared away the remnants of tissue paper, napkins, and chicken wire, put the last minute touches to decorations, covered all efforts with plastic coverings in an attempt to keep off the damaging effects of the rain, and sat back to wait for the Homecoming to begin. The campus was soon dotted with people admiring three papier-mâché musicians tapping out a "beat tune," chicken wire Redbirds controlling the "Wheel of Fortune," and Birdie witches hexing the Saluki opponents. This year Dunn-Barton

Hall captured the trophy for their "Beat Salukis Play the Blues."

The parade of the "Birdies" began at 9:30 Saturday morning, half an hour later than previous years so that more people could attend. On the cold, ominous morning, birdies of different shapes, sizes, and varieties, featuring the elegant swan float of the Queen and her attendants, paraded down the streets of Normal to display their brightest colors in defiance of the dreary weather. Fourteen high school bands also cheered the freezing crowd. Lowell Mason Club's float, "They're Swinging Off Bass," fiddled their entry to victory in the float division.

a regal Homecoming, 1959

Saturday brought not only the parade, but rain, and because of the downpour, the best description of the game was, "It was wet." The Redbirds were not triumphant against Southern Illinois University. Out-weighted and out-played, they did their best—and lost, 18-8. A slight drizzle was visible at the pre-game ceremonies when our Queen, Sharon Palmer, and her court, Elizabeth Blackwell, Doris Carmichael, Karlene Douglass, and Marti Laird, were presented with tiny footballs as mementoes of their reign. The rain-soaked crowd dispersed soon after the half-time ceremonies of the band formation and kick-line dances—all feeling effects of coldness of rain and coldness of defeat, but warmed and happy by the fighting enthusiasm of the game.

Spirits brightened at the thoughts of the entertainment for the last night of Homecoming. Many of the alumni gathered at the new Westhoff Theatre where George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion," under the direction of Miss Mable Clare Allen, and "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets," under the student direction of Chuck Rolinski, were being produced.

The Homecoming Dance, "Lullaby of Birdland," combined all of the gaiety, excitement, and pent-up enthusiasm into a few lasting hours, and presented itself as a thrilling affair, highlighting a week end of pleasure. Dancers swayed and rocked to the music of Hal Munro and his orchestra as Homecoming 1959, for alums, students, and guests, came to an exciting climax.

Jesters

Eligibility for this dramatics organization is earned in the form of a point system by working on play crews or by having either a major or minor role in a University theatre production. This year the members sponsored as the winter

Lights! Costumes! Actors! The culmination of all creative efforts brings life to a script and enjoyment to a theatre audience.

And as the curtain falls . . .

University Theatre and growth seem as a unity, a combination of efforts that have brought to this campus a new theatre building and materials and equipment with which the student of 1960 and of the future can work in order to bring to himself and to others enjoyment and satisfaction in one of the many mediums of entertainment—the stage.

It is in this vast and fascinating medium that the student is given an opportunity to escape, to become another person in the actor, in the stage hand, and perhaps even in the audience. It is through such participation that he becomes aware of and sensitive to the realm of the theatre. This awareness and sensitivity is not a feeling that comes quickly and easily; it must be molded gently. Long, but rewarding, is the process that begins when a student takes that first step to try out . . . the feel of greasepaint, the heat of burning lights, the sounds of rustling costumes, and the effort and workmanship that are necessary in putting up the set . . . all deserving applause.

The student soon finds himself thrown into a whirlwind of activities that go into the making of a polished production. These activities include the numerous and often trying nights of rehearsals, frantic memorization of lines, new concepts and ideas associated with the application of make-up, and the art of costuming. A strange thrill comes when he finds himself being changed physically, emotionally, and mentally into a new and excitingly different personage, one that he hopes the audience will understand and appreciate. Short bits of "small talk" about a line that was dropped, a wrong entrance, or a hemline that tore on stage are hastily exchanged during a break in rehearsals.

During the long hours of theatre work, friendships are made with fellow actors and actresses and with the unapplauded people behind the scenes, the crews. A common interest has formed a common bond. Cast and crews work, maturing to a peak where artistic expression is no longer feared, no longer an accident, but an unending struggle for sincerity and perfection. University Theatre—individuals working, creating, learning, and growing together.

The entrance to Westhoff Theatre signifies achievement in architecture, just as the programs within signify achievement in drama.

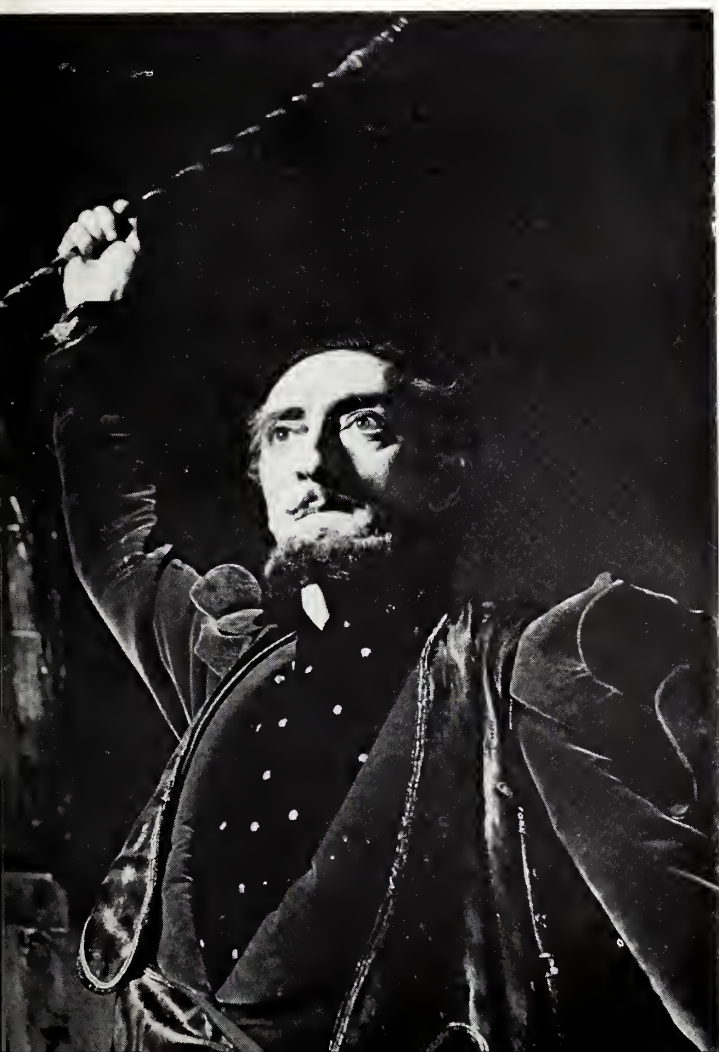

Veteran actor Vincent Price expresses his view to a crowd of admirers as he signs copies of his book, I Like What I Know.

Arnold Moss, in a scene from "The Tempest," calls upon his faithful sprite Ariel to engage in magical misgivings.

Entertainment Series

Quality and versatility—top artists blend these two components to form a final result, entertainment. The series began with Hollywood actor Vincent Price. An informal talk gave listeners an intimate background of the "celluloid jungle." Comedy and drama were displayed to Shakespearean perfection in Arnold Moss' presentation of "The Tempest." English folk songs and ballads were strummed and hummed by guitarist and lutist Julian Bream. Capen Auditorium was accented with color, musical craftsmanship, and stereophonic sound with the advent of Fred Waring. Vance Packard, noted author, impressed audiences with his pertinent facts about the social aspects of American culture. In addition, the Arts Films brought such outstanding movies as "The Bolshoi Ballet" and "Gate of Hell."

Happy people, dancing feet, and smooth music

In a mathematical improbability, one plus one combine to equal four—the Big Four. The Women's League and the University Club are the "ones"; the four refers to the big name dances presented on campus, this year featuring Les Elgart, Harry James, Count Basie, and Woody Herman—music for all moods.

Blue-gray shadows form arabesque figures, en masse, against the wall . . . soft lights, people laughing, much talking, and more dancing. Count Basie's piano and Woody Herman's clarinet blare out the beat. The youngsters are quick to dance; the oldsters are slower to respond—people thrown close together. The unique sound of Les Elgart's orchestra calls one and all to swing and sway to his rendition of "One O'clock Jump." The perimeter of the room is lined with on-lookers awaiting their opportunity to join the dancing multitude. In its entirety, the room looks like an organism—pulsating, rhythmic, living. On the bandstand, the leader and controller of the organism, Harry James flashes his most personable smile, lifts his trumpet, and again brings the organism to its pulsating life. Then, at the hour of midnight, McCormick becomes once more a gymnasium. And of the music, only lonely and discordant echoes remain.

“Lest We Forget”

An event of intangible feelings was June 5, 1959, the eve of the Junior-Senior Prom, sponsored by the Junior Class. A night of emotions, of gaiety and laughter, of pride and tribute. For the seniors it signified an evening of parting, the last dance before graduation; for the juniors it afforded smiles that represented the pride they took in offering an evening of dancing. “Such stuff as dreams are made of.” Shadows on the wall whirled to the rise and fall of flowing music. The dance floor was swept in the overtones of farewell; some dancers previewed dreams of the future; some recalled memories of the past—a fusion of sentiments. Offered was the very highest tribute to a respected class. Recollections and smiles, ingredients of a memorable evening . . . for the seniors the end of the beginning.

Echoes of Old Southland served as a backdrop for guests at the traditional Sophomore Cotillion. Permeating the Student Union Ballroom, tones of Bob Baxter's Band lent additional harmony and atmosphere to the dancing throngs. Selected by the Class of 1961, Joyce Elliott and Jim Hill reigned graciously during the festive occasion. All factors united to form an evening that will long provide blissful memories for those who were in attendance as a picturesque realization of the creative efforts of the Sophomore Class.

FORENSICS Reasoning and Retort

A free interchange and objective evaluation of ideas through public speaking, discussion, and debate—forensics. The goal is knowledge, power from concentrated study developed through exchange of ideas, study that promotes use of logical reasoning, develops abilities to select and arrange material, and trains students in sincere, persuasive presentation. Interscholastic, intercollegiate competition is utilized to arouse and inspire students. Emphasis is on achieving proficiency—the State in April to determine the champions, then on to West Point for eliminations at the National Debate Tournament. Forensics—striving for proficiency and reward, utilizing both logical reasoning and effective evidence.

Diverting Variations . . .

Beatniks, a lack of the male animal, and the pervasive effects of ginko berries were put to words, music, and dance, and presented as cleverly executed stunts in the twenty-fifth annual Stunt Show, May 1, in Capen Auditorium. Fell Hall's first place entry, "The Ginko Tree," found sophomore girls depicting kaleidoscopic events under the campus' most aromatic tree. Second place was awarded to Jesters for the efforts of levi clad "Beats" rebelling against the oncoming conformity that was invading their poetic and artistic domain, Downtown U. Third place went to the characterization of a Loosa-Date-a-Day sorority, better known as Barton Hall, as the girls sought the answer to the ever-present female problem—how to catch a man. Gamma Phi, however, found pleasure in giving Lola, a cat, whatever she wanted. Faculty members, in the most anxiously awaited stunt of the evening, "let their hair down" and became somewhat less than instructors with satirical impersonations. Audiences can well expect to find the most serious of campus situations executed in the most unserious but entertaining style.

The services are varied: newscasts, weather reports, faculty anthologies, current campus events, and musical, social, or political programs. One goal is kept in mind — communication. Presented each weekday over WJBC, Bloomington, the program offers experience for junior broadcasters as well as information to students and local residents. ## music and rhythm . . .

There is beauty in music. Expression, appreciation, entertainment, and interpretation are the established principles of music practiced in University Choir, University Symphony, and Men's Glee Club.

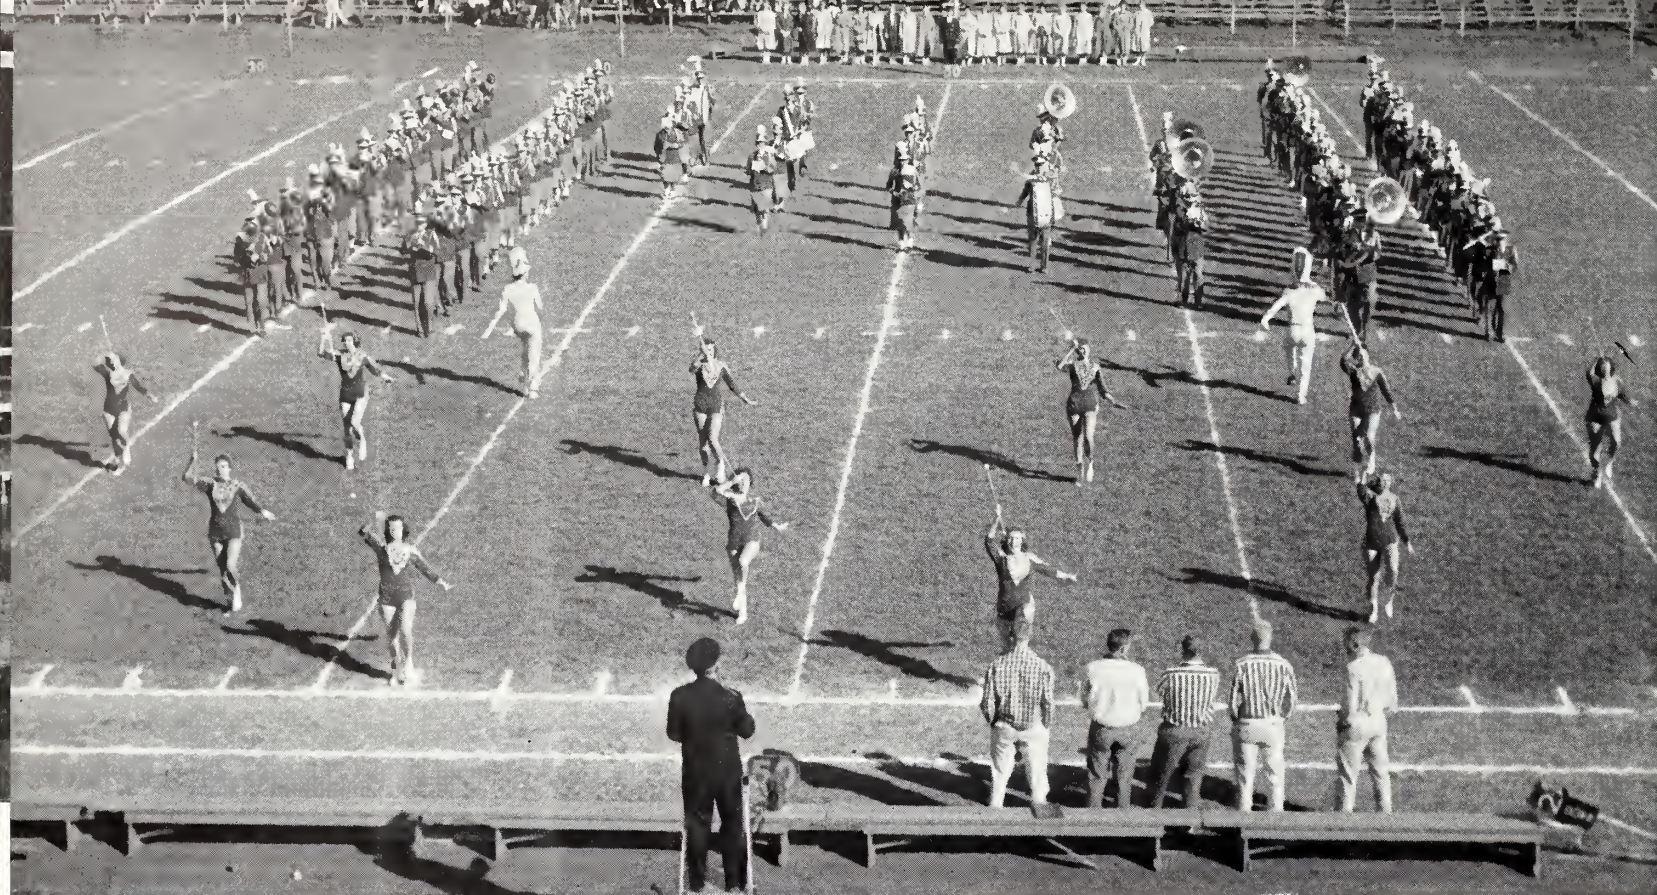

The University Choir stands in a maze of bleachers awaiting the signal. The pianist strikes a note, the robed choir members silently sound pitch, and the maestro's hand rises, bringing a collection of voices in a burst of sound. Resonant altos, mellow tenors, solid basses, and vibrating sopranos synthesize to produce a variety of tones. But even polished productions do not tell of friendships that build unity and understanding.

University Symphony cultivates expression when the beauty and charm of sound are set to motion by the flowing baton of the controller. The music rises and falls, scattering strains into remote but related particles. In this private world of music, new life is given to light words and great classics, a life filled with shadows provided by a velvet backdrop of string, woodwind, and subtle brass. With the finis, delicate instruments are cleaned carefully and placed in their cases; all that lingers is the symmetry of music.

The lights are flashed, the crowd hushes, and the curtain opens, revealing white-jacketed, boutonniere figures. Husky, mellow voices lift, filling the auditorium with tone-colored cadence, the result of practice and patience. Selections of the group vary from ballads to excerpts from Broadway musicals . . . songs of jubilation and songs of woe. Music and man—appreciation.

Men's and Women's Marching Bands combine to form the familiar N as they accompany fans in a rousing chorus of the pep song.

Physics in Practice . . .

Marching feet, flying batons, a stately drum major, flashing red and gray, and a stimulating beat command a quick cadence designed to quicken the youngest pulse. Calfskin and cat gut, wood and brass, feathers and fur are curiously related. Physics in practice—forced air through valves, percussive effects. Coordination of feet, hands, breath, bodies, and minds—precision and beauty. The band on parade!

Adding to the decor of the football field, baton twirlers take time out from their precision twirling routines.

The true meaning of the holiday season, the spiritual and joyful, is reflected in the colored lights of the campus Christmas tree.

A Sparkle of Christmas . . .

The Christmas spirit on college campuses all over the United States usually begins in mid-December because of the long holiday vacation.

ISNU is no exception to this rule. Busy hands transformed everyday surroundings to a winter wonderland displaying beautifully decorated Jolly Old St. Nick, alias President Bone, came early to give Bonnie Carpenter her yuletide box of cheer at the annual Christmas Ball.

The Season of Giving . . .

Paper sculptures create a snowflake wonderland to the dancing couples who realize that holiday campus activities will soon be over.

Voices unite triumphantly with the orchestra to exalt Handel's Messiah in an oratorio that conveys the true Christmas message.

The Majesty of Music . . .

Christmas trees which stood as sentinels in practically all buildings, as soft strains of yuletide songs echoed through the halls and across campus.

Authentic costumes, newly sewn, spirited, baroque music, a roast boar's head, and the spicy aroma of plum pudding recreated a touch of Merry Olde England at the Madrigal Dinner in the Student Union.

Creativity showed through the soft candle glow, sparkling satellites, and sculptured snow flakes at the various formal dances of the season. Music took another form with the annual presentation of the inspirational Messiah by Handel, as three hundred voices blended and swelled harmoniously in the singing of this glorious oratorio.

Holiday hall decorations, candlelight dinners, evening church services, tree lighting ceremonies, and familiar songs of Christmas are the sights and sounds which formed the integral memories symbolizing the true feeling of the season.

Lowell Mason

Presenting the finale are Barbara Meyer and Mike Stiers of Lowell Mason's "Pajama Game," the spring musical.

Lowell Mason members, equipped with voices, instruments, and music, entertain the student body and the community. From the Richard Bissel novel, 7½ Cents, comes the production "Pajama Game," which Lowell Mason presented in the spring. The light comedy transformed Capen Auditorium into a pajama factory. Helping to promote music and musical activities, the group strives for better prepared members and for unity to gain greater knowledge of musical productions and performances. The Homecoming float won first honors featuring "They're Swinging Off Bass," a revolving redbird picking a bass guitar. These students annually present a scholarship to an upperclassman. The organization is built to music and therefore built forever.

With sparkling eyes and a lovely smile Sharon Morton, Queen of the Sweetheart Ball, displays a bouquet of red roses.

Cupid's Carousel

The Sweetheart Ball, February 13, 1960, set the students and faculty attending in a dancing motion. Accenting the mood was music by the eight piece band of Bill Pappa. Couples whirled about the Student Union ballroom, carefully designed and decorated in a red and white carousel theme by the University Club members.

Sharon Morton, elected by the men on campus as Sweetheart Queen, was crowned by Buzz Shaw, University Club president. The court of Valentine sweethearts included Sally Albright, Sheila Grandfield, Marla Perkins, and Adele Talaga. Carousel enchantment ended too soon, leaving a dark, lonely Student Union ballroom.

Acrobats Lucy Underwood, Devée DeRocker, Diane Alt, Sharon Schillinger, and Marty Staab climax a performance on parallel bars.

Gamma Phi

"All the world loves a clown"—the smiling faces and twinkling eyes of happy children, young and old, as a comical character in a multi-colored costume pranced around the floor; the awed expression of the entire crowd as acrobats and aerialists exhibited daring feats far above their heads; the excited amazement at the speed and agility of tumblers and unicyclists; a silent admiration at the crowning of the lovely queen and her court—these were some of the sights and emotions of the audience at Gamma Phi's twenty-fourth annual circus performed in McCormick Gymnasium March 17, 18, and 19.

Developing mind and body through a feeling of unity, sharing a common interest, and encouraging gymnastics throughout the university, members of Gamma Phi experienced a mental, physical, social, and emotional growth.

Offering their spectacular show to three high schools in the state, Gamma Phi traveled to New Lenox, Canton, and Dwight, Illinois, to present their road show. Not only did the schools benefit by the publicity of presenting a traveling circus, but they also received all profits from the show, paying for only the transportation and one meal for the troupe. The two hour production was the culmination of countless hours of sewing costumes, painting their equipment, diligently practicing their stunts, making decorations, and cleaning up afterwards. A happy singing troupe of performers left to stage their road show; and a weary, exhausted group returned. But the satisfaction of the sound of applauding approval and the companionship shared by members of a fraternity proved to be the sought after reward for their many efforts.

Probing people and events . . .

Deadline is the one dreaded word of the newspaper worker, because deadlines have to be met on time. Beats are covered; news tips are followed; and special features are devised to add needed inches for the reporter and his articles.

"Patience is a virtue" is the phrase Vidette staff members remember, especially when it comes to Monday night layout, page make-up, headline writing, and deadlines. During the evening meeting, stories are cut, glued, and recut. Galleys are read and re-read. Headline characters are counted and then re-counted. It is a long, hard night; but rewards are many when each Wednesday the newspaper's 4,000 pursuers, that include faculty members, students, graduates, and townspeople, wait to read the current and often controversial coverage and features.

Informal gatherings on Wednesday afternoons provide an excellent atmosphere for discussing the finished product. At this time errors are brought to the attention of staff members and further improvements recommended. The final reward of all these efforts comes in knowing that one has aided in an important and necessary aspect of life—communication. Thus the journalist improves his facility of expression.

Index Staff

Pencils, papers, rulers, and typewriters are the ingredients that go into the making of a year-book. Add to this the element of creative minds, and the entire process is complicated. Hours of writing copy, adjusting layouts, designing pages, meeting deadlines—trivia to some—are essentials to the staff. Lubricated and sustained by an immeasurable supply of coffee, coke, and cigarettes, the ceaseless clicking of the typewriters finally stopped, literary staff members put pencils aside, and the editorial staff paused. The events and activities of one college year culminated with growth, and the 1960 Index was no longer just an abstraction, or an idea, but a creation.

Fast paced performance of action . . .

Mud, rain, snow, ice, and conference foes were the biggest headaches of the Redbirds. The Birdies couldn't win one game from a conference foe but managed to garner all three of their season's wins from non-conference foes. Eastern Illinois on Dad's Day came the closest of the IAC powers to succumb to the Birds, but the contest ended in a 6-6 tie. If there was anybody who was halfway comfortable at a home game, it would have been somebody who stayed home to listen to it on the radio. In the home opener against Central Michigan cold, rain-driving winds forged across McCormick Field and slowed speedy backs to a walk. Homecoming was also marred by the same elements. For the Eastern contest the Birds were faced with a new novelty. The linemen had to wear gloves to keep their hands from getting cut by sharp ice and snow that covered a quagmire of mud.

At the end of the season, Captain Dean Puyear was elected Most Valuable Player, and Mike Monken and Leonard (Whitey) Ruzycki were elected to be the captains for next year. Puyear, a regular on both defense and offense, was the top ball carrier for Coach Ed Struck with 305 yards gained in 108 attempts for a 2.8 per-try average. He was also the top scorer for the Redbirds with 30 points in the nine games played. Active on both offense and defense, Monken was the team's top receiver with 16 catches for 218 yards; Ruzycski, a strong defensive end, caught 11 during the season for 122 yards. Sophomores Dave Babcock and Ron Ross followed Puyear in the rushing department. Babcock, a fullback, gained 227 yards in 68 attempts for 3.3 yards per try; and halfback Ron Ross advanced 207 yards in 64 carries for a 3.2 mark. In the passing department, Wayne Meece was the leader with 47 completions in 104 tosses for 559 yards and four touchdowns, while Keith Rieger connected 11 times in 11 attempts for 139 yards. Sam Bair, halfback, was the top punter for the season, averaging 34.4 yards per try in 42 kicks. This average was good enough to place second in the conference. Quarterback Meece was the top individual total offense leader for the Birdies with 727 yards to his credit. Meece made most of his ground yardage via the option play, which he executed with the utmost of effectiveness.

The Junior Varsity football team compiled a season's mark of two wins and three losses. The Bees garnered their two wins from Belleville

Junior College and Northern Illinois University. The three losses were suffered at the hands of LaSalle-Peru-Oglesby Junior College, Western Illinois University, and Eastern Illinois University. LaSalle-Peru-Oglesby squad was one of the best junior college teams in the country. Ron Schieber was the big gun for the Bees. He was a consistent threat in the backfield and led the Bees in scoring. The ironic aspect of Schieber's performances was the fact that he never played an organized game of football in his life until the past season. Coach Struck can well utilize Schieber's speed in the future, as Schieber is only a sophomore. Another outstanding performer for Coach Warren Crews was freshman Bill Vance. Vance was a scoring threat to any of the Birds' junior opponents. Other men with talent that may well be utilized by the Varsity were Jerry Conroy, end; Dave Schuppe, quarterback; Al Bard, end; and Larry Engle, guard. These men who began their college careers on the Junior Varsity could well move up to the Varsity and be the mainstays of Coach Struck's team. If they do, ISNU potential will have a good season.

Exponents of energy and school spirit throughout the football and basketball seasons are Varsity Cheerleaders, bottom to top, Sandy Hilliard, Marilyn Sayers, Judy Romary, Doris Carmichael, Sharon Palmer.

A man of thought and action is Dean Puyear, president of N Club.

No one knows what he can do until he tries, but the result of trying could mean a sports letter. Whether the activities require hard work or clean fun, the N Club is a fine example of effective teamwork and leadership, combined through the traits of good character which develops perfection of leadership, sportsmanship which is co-operativeness through a unity of functions, and self-reliance which is an assurance that unites ideals and adaptability, scholastically and physically. Among other functions, the N Club hosts to the McLean County Tournament, operates concessions at ball games, plans the Goodwill Exchange Dance with rival Wesleyan University, and manages the election of the queen at Homecoming—their biggest task of the school year. Men of action and men of thought. Clear the way!

Watching his weight and diet like a key girl watching the dormitory clock, the wrestler starves and sweats each week in order to make his weight for the coming match. Thus, there is more to wrestling than just trying to outwit an opponent. Bob Spicer put the needed combinations together most successfully as he compiled a season's record of 19 wins and 2 set-backs. Bob Riek, however, found the going a little tougher as he had a so-so record going into the IAC meet but found the right combination just in time to win the only Redbird championship. He won the 177-pound division to completely surprise the seeding experts. Dave Sheridan won the Hudleson Award, which is given annually to the wrestler who vanquishes his opponent the most times via the pin route. Wide eyed, open mouthed, and with muscles tense, Most Valuable Player Jerry Odell drives in for an attempted lay up.

ISNU was unable to defend its IIAC crown on the basketball court, but it did have a great deal to do with determining who was to occupy the vacated throne. By defeating Southern Illinois in the last conference game of the season, Normal enabled Western Illinois to tie the Salukis for the title. Jerry Odell was elected the Most Valuable Player by his teammates and by the coaches of the conference. NAIA District 20 coaches elected Odell for their second team. Buzz Shaw was also named to both all-star squads, and Ron English was selected on the NAIA team. Adding to the Redbird laurels were two victories secured from the Wesleyan team across the tracks and a first place finish in the Ottawa (Kansas) Holiday Invitational Tournament. The Birdies compiled six wins and six losses in IIAC competition and an 18-8 record.

to notch a six won and four lost dual meet record. Lacking adequate tennis court space, the Birdie netmen were able to have only four home meets. Highlighting the season was the dual between the Eastern Illinois Panthers and the Redbirds. Eastern edged the Birds 5-4 and romped to a 7-2 win. In the Bradley Quadrangular, the Panthers edged the Birds for first place as they won fifteen matches to fourteen for Normal. Pat Grant, the only Redbird netman to reach the finals of the IIAC, dropped a match to Jim Jarrett of Southern. In the conference meet every Redbird netman, with the exception of Grant, won at least one match but dropped his second and lost his doubles competition.

Even with the sidewalk leading to the Centennial Building and running through the middle of the tennis courts, the tennis team still managed Cocking his arm in readiness for a long throw to first base is freshman third baseman Clint "Skeeter" Evans.

The umpire gets set to make his usual guess from the background as Al Petty stretches to beat out the throw to the first baseman.

Batters and Runners . .

The lack of hitting hurt the Redbird diamond crew as they posted a six won and eleven lost IIAC record and an overall record of nine won and nineteen lost. Not one Cardinal was able to break into the top twenty-five hitters in the conference. Al Petty hit .289 for the conference and a respectable .304 against overall competition. Highlight of the baseball season was the 2-1 victory over the University of Illinois. This marked the third year victory over the U. of I.

Stretching out and setting his face for the oncoming runner is sophomore first baseman Woody Jones.

Linksmen

In the spring a young man's mind turns to many things, and golf is one of them. Beginning with a most promising squad, one with a nucleus of four lettermen and one former high school conference champion, Coach Howard Hancock's divoters established a high season record of eight wins and five losses in dual meet competition. Led by Captain Frank Wright and freshman Burles Bennett, the linksmen defeated Northern, Bradley, Eureka, Eastern, Washington, and St. Louis. Southern was the only squad having the distinction of turning the trick twice. Eureka College provided the linksmen with the most unbalanced win of the season as they posted a  $17\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{1}{2}$  win. In the IIAC, the divoters tied for sixth place with the Eastern Illinois Panthers.

Volleyball, a game of hand-eye co-ordination, requires speed and agility as shown here in a tense moment of a match.

Women's Extramurals

The group is composed of women physical education majors and minors plus other sports-minded women who are interested in, and who demonstrate, sports skill, who volunteered because of knowledge and prowess in sports. Members comprise the competitive delegates of intercollegiate sports. They play in competition with girl's college teams in such sports as basketball, volleyball, and hockey. Extramurals aid in creating a spirit of good-will and fellowship.

Rough and tumble action underneath the bankboard for the elusive basketball is typical of the technique of intramural activity.

Men's Intramurals

For every interested man on campus there is the opportunity for athletic participation in the intramural program. The athletic program offers a generous variety of sports for all appetites, including such activities as volleyball, basketball, badminton, baseball, and an extensive six-week bowling session. Working through the Men's Health and Physical Education Department, programs offer individual and group play, providing an atmosphere for constructive recreation.

STUDENT UNION BOARD

Activities

Under Direction

The Student Union Board, a policy making organization, unified the social, recreational, and educational elements of the campus. The Board, composed of students and faculty, approved, arranged, and governed all of the Student Union's activities. This year the Board members participated in the annual conference of Region Six of the Association of College Unions held at Purdue University. Next year this convention will be held on the campus of ISNU.

Combining the social—the annual Christmas Ball, two Cabaret Dances, and the “Jazz Limited” sessions every other week; the recreational—ping pong tournaments, and the Ski and Sailing Clubs; and the educational—student and professional art exhibits, social forums, and a “Look-at-the-World” series, the Union carried out its function of a “living room” for the students on campus by taking all of their diversified interests to heart and offering fun and relaxation.

Growth and Achievement

Beginning this year's activities under a new constitution, the Student Senate initiated new devices designed to promote further "unity and genuine understanding between the faculty and the student body." A retreat, held at Lake Bloomington in October, was well received by members who evaluated the sessions as stimulating and beneficial for a more effective Senate.

ISNU's Senate is now a member of the National Student Association, which involves attendance at the fall and spring regional conventions as well as at the national convention. Innovating the practice of regular office hours, conducting a Student Forum, forming standing committees on student-faculty boards, correlating communications through campus improvement and campus elections, and representing the Freshman Class and graduate students have now become a reality, constituting greater growth and achievement by the Student Senate.

BUSINESS EDUCATION CLUB interests students in practical problems concerning business. The organization supervised judging of all dorm and house decorations, planned joint meetings with Pi Omega Pi and the Commerce Club of Wesleyan, and sponsored a Christmas Party and a spring picnic for all the members.

CLOVERLEAF COLLEGIATE +H Club displays talents and abilities by working with enthusiasm and interest on individual projects exhibited at the achievement show at the end of the year. At each of the monthly meetings, all of the members participate in a demonstration concerning projects of interest to everyone.

Absent: Miss Ethel Wooley, Miss Elizabeth Russell, Sponsors.

ELEMENTARY CLUB is one of ISNU's largest organizations. Students majoring in elementary education take part in such programs as making and selling pom poms for Homecoming, offering guidance to boys at Victory Hall, and learning of new concepts that have developed in the vast field of elementary education.

ENGLISH CLUB visited the University of Illinois to view productions by their Dramatic Club, enjoyed Mrs. Harold Sinclair's lecture on the writing and the production of her husband's novel, The Horse Soldiers, and learned about the customs and language of the Russian people, providing education as well as entertainment.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUB attempts by thorough exploration and research to unlock the door of misunderstanding by learning the tongues of many countries. Members converse in Spanish, French, Latin, and German. This year ISNU offered Russian, affording students another aspect of international understanding.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB fosters the principles of practical science. Homemaking has as its laboratory the home with the scientists being the members of the club. These activities include guest speakers discussing home displays, charity contributions, and field trips to interest majors and minors in the science of the home.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS CLUB, publishers of the Student Directory, provide a welcome aid to the yearly communication problems on campus. Their various activities include sending deserving representatives to the important annual American Vocational Association Convention, and offering a year's tuition scholarship.

MAIZE GRANGE is a co-educational organization for students interested in the creation of better educational and economic opportunities in rural living, and in the elevation of the life of American farmers through moral and spiritual idealism. Members sponsor several square dances and take active part in all Homecoming affairs.

MATHEMATICS CLUB, a new organization has a promising future. The purposes, as defined in its constitution, are to promote fellowship among mathematicians, become acquainted with math students and faculty, present programs of interest and value, and discuss mathematical questions beyond class offerings.

MEN'S PE CLUB began its second year by attending the annual IAHPEP Conference. Members sponsored the Wheelchair Basketball game in December and a dance in May, showed Big 10 and professional films, awarded four scholarships, and helped conduct the Cheerleading Clinic in the fall, providing a full program for the year.

NAACP worked to establish better inter-racial relationships. An investigating committee surveyed racial issues in Cardinal Court and other student housing. Submitted to the University was a future housing resolution which resulted in an audience with President Bone. Among social events were a record dance and a Christmas party.

NATURALISTS have an opportunity to observe changes in nature and in natural forms. Flora and fauna of all types are studied by the group. Aside from field trips for direct association with these natural elements, members listen to lecturers and schedule films. Each year the Naturalists contribute to campus Homecoming decorations.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE CLUB has a definite language all its own. Resultant force, scientific method, gravitational pull, and energy transformation give us a conception of what this club is concerned with. To find out about these things and many more, the club engaged well-qualified speakers from local scientific firms.

SCIENCE CLUB cultivates an interest in science by keeping members informed on recent scientific advances, and stimulates the study of science beyond the classroom. Membership is limited to upper-classmen in the eight science-affiliated departments. Monthly programs and speakers challenged the science interests of students.

SHUFFLIN' SHOES provided games and recreation for its members as well as teaching them the fundamentals of square dancing. The club attended festivals, gave square dance demonstrations and performances for campus groups, assisted with an all-school dance, and sponsored a square dance at the close of orientation week.

SOCIAL SCIENCE CLUB provided educational entertainment for members with lectures presented by Dr. Sorenson of the Geography Department, who spoke on Africa, Mr. Keller of UAW-CIO, and his talk on the steel strike, and Dr. Sutton of the University of Illinois, who spoke on the many available opportunities for undergraduate students, as well as graduate students.

Seated: Barbara Graham, Secretary; Bob Wahl, President; Judy Meyer, Vice-president. Standing: Larry Little, Publicity Chairman; Jerry Parker, Treasurer.

SPECIAL EDUCATION CLUB learned of new methods and ideas in the field of special education, shared in the experiences of graduates now teaching, provided for handicapped children through Y Night, and enjoyed taking part in such club activities as the Senior Take-off, a Dutch auction, and the Homecoming parade.

STUDENT NEA organized, fostered, and promoted high school Future Teachers Associations, and encouraged the teaching profession. Programs of teacher panels and noted speakers offered broadened concepts in the educational field. State conventions, college workshops, and school registrations included some of the activities.

WOMEN'S PE CLUB exists for professional, social, and educational assistance for women physical education majors and minors. This is its specific obligation and function. Maintaining its extremely large membership, this organization offers us a prime example of the magnitude of interest in physical education on campus.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS promotes student participation in government at the national, state, and local levels. The club helps members develop the basic rudiments of reasoning and familiarize themselves with the historical backgrounds of political parties. The club is an affiliated member of the Democratic Federation of Illinois.

An Element of Unity

Leader of men on the campus was "Buzz" Shaw, president of U Club.

Fraternity and service, universally recognized as long being the epitome of interrelations, are the ideals of the University Club. The only organization on campus in which all men are automatically enrolled, U Club provides an excellent opportunity for incoming freshmen, as well as upper classmen, to become acquainted with each other and the campus.

In addition to unifying the men on campus, U Club sponsors many activities vital to student life: the Christmas Service, the Stunt Show, the Sweetheart Ball, and transportation to sports events away from campus. The club also teams with Women's League on such important events as Dad's Day in the fall, Mother's Day in the spring, and the Big Four Dances throughout the year. Fraternal and serviceable, University Club is an important campus organization.

League of Leaders

As the only all women's organization on campus, Women's League gives every ISNU woman an opportunity to join its varied program. Working as a unified group, members of the League conduct many services, both on campus and off. Filling Thanksgiving baskets for needy families in the area and working with the League of Women Voters constitute some of the many important functions. For the students, WL sponsors the Campus-Sister Movement, two formals, and the annual Spring Carnival. In these activities the League has committees of students who give of their free time to help other people.

Members realize the important place of women in the University and in the world, and obtain a better perspective through social development, high ethical standards, and civic responsibility. The key words which best describe the functions of Women's League might well be "achievement through leadership."

Smiling Judy Anderson, president of Women's League, relaxes from her presidential duties.

Joyce Albrecht, president, led sportsminded girls in a busy year.

"Friends 'til the end." These words best describe the feelings of those women active in the Women's Recreation Association. Co-operation is their key word; active participation is their main objective. Interests are varied: camping trips, monthly coke hours, play nights, and swim parties. Everyone is given an opportunity to join the fun and fellowship.

Women who have special talents in a particular sport are encouraged to participate in the extramural program. ISNU teams test their skill against women of opposing schools in such sports as hockey, baseball, and tennis. Programs afford WRA members the excitement of trips to other colleges and universities, and an exchange of thoughts, ideas, and good will. WRA's purpose—promoting wholesome recreation.

WOMEN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

Key to Co-operation

YOUNG REPUBLICANS is a relatively new organization. The group succeeds in stimulating active political interest among members and other students on local, national, and international levels. The club receives a broadening political knowledge through informal programs which engage guest speakers and teacher panels.

YWCA, being contemporary minded, is an organization which attempts to create specific purposes and goals for the modern woman. The Young Women's Christian Association had as one major project this year its eighty-seventh birthday celebration, featuring Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas, wife of Senator Paul Douglas, as one of the speakers.

Religious Groups

An Understanding of Faiths . . .

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." The students of ISNU seem to realize the importance of the realm of religion.

To prove the faith of the students in the church and in prayer, over two-thirds of the ISNU student body stated church preferences on their enrollment cards. These preferences included thirty-seven different types of worship.

The church has often been referred to as a rock standing in the midst of the storms of life, and how often this has proved true for each one of us on campus. The church has provided us with the great strength which allows us to think ahead in times of distress and to live each day in the best possible way. During the college years, students face many problems, both emotionally and mentally, which cannot be borne alone. The students need somewhere to go and someone to talk to, someone who will share their problems. The church and its clergy fulfill this need. With Bible study, prayer, and good fellowship, the church is a sanctuary to all of those who seek refuge and peace of mind within her walls.

A Sunday morning on the campus with its array of smartly dressed, calm-countenanced college students going to various church services will bring to anyone a newly inspired faith in the future of America and in her rising generations, the many thousands of college graduates.

CANTERBURY CLUB a gathering of individuals bonded together toward spiritual growth, gains knowledge through study of Episcopalian books and authors and ultimately God. Through organizational discussions and lectures, members search to discover more, trying to understand and interpret the world of faith.

CHANNING-MURRAY strives to provide an atmosphere of freedom, rationality, and mutual respect within each Unitarian-Universalist individual. Discussions of various theological viewpoints, a recording of a speech on Evolution by Julian Huxley, and a presentation on Tillich by Mrs. Howard Ivens stimulated members.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE members study the Bible, science, and health as outlined by Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the organization, to unify the Christian Science students on campus. Once a year a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist of Boston, Massachusetts, gives a group lecture.

First Row: Ellen Brownlie, Judy Williams, President; Cadet Cottingham, Secretary-Treasurer; Miss Helen Marshall, Sponsor.

EUB FELLOWSHIP provides inspiration for the body, the mind, and the soul by strengthening church life through discussions centered around religion. Members of the Evangelical United Brethren Fellowship related their experiences to problems in theology, helping students acquire self-satisfaction and peace of mind.

IVCF, a non-denominational organization, deepened the spiritual lives of students and faculty through fellowship and through the study of the Bible. Members of the Intervarsity Christian Fellowship met once a week for inspiration and enrichment of their concept of the Bible's teachings. The group also sponsored spiritual conferences.

LUTHERAN CLUB, welcoming members of any Lutheran denomination, has for its primary objectives the promotion of Christian worship and the development of Christian fellowship. Sponsoring church suppers, entertaining Homecoming float competition, and organizing Lenten devotions are projects undertaken by the group.

NEWMAN CLUB provided programs of informative nature with discussions and lectures concerning this year's theme, "Catholic Love." The club sponsored a Day of Recollection and a coffee hour after Mass each Sunday. A goal of building a chapel for the large number of Catholic students on campus united the members.

WESLEY FOUNDATION combined the religious, the vocational, and the social in bringing to its members a diversity of activities. Attending overnight retreats at Lake Bloomington, communion services during Advent and Lent, the state vocational conference, weekly music hours, and Sunday suppers provided recreation as well as inspiration for students of the religious organization.

HONORARIES

A Challenging of Minds . . .

Two of the most imperative needs for any student are to encourage his interest and reward his achievement. An opportunity to achieve this dual goal is found in one or more of the seventeen honorary societies, either national or local, in operation on campus. By providing both informative and social programs, the honoraries stimulate interest; by specifying a certain scholastic average for membership, they reward achievement. Emphasizing a variety of criteria, such as scholastic excellence, activity, or service, each group offers a different standard and challenge to the individual student. Regardless of particular goals, all honoraries attempt to increase leadership and co-operation, to provide an organization for people with common interests, and to challenge the mind, stimulating further interests. To respond to a challenge, the individual student must first perceive its specific quality. This type of perception can be trained, and training implies self effort. Honoraries—a tangible achievement of growth in wisdom and maturity.

ALPHA BETA ALPHA admits to membership students interested in the field of library science. A visit to the Daily Pantagraph library, observance of National Library Week, and the improvement of school libraries are some activities stressed by the members, who are conscious of the importance of libraries.

ALPHA PHI GAMMA, National Journalistic Fraternity, seeks better press standards by stimulating interest in publications and advocating better standards of communication. All year members worked on either the Index or the Vidette staffs. A tour through the WMBD TV studios in Peoria was sponsored by the group.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA honors men on campus who are interested in furthering the objectives of the fraternity: service to the University, to the community, and to Scouting activities. Ushering for University programs and guiding prospective students during the Annual College Day are some of the duties performed.

ALPHA TAU ALPHA strives for improvement of education in agriculture. Honorary agriculture fraternity members know the "absolute latest" in advanced applications of farming techniques. Members of Alpha Tau Alpha are required to meet and maintain high scholastic averages and must be majors of agriculture.

GAMMA THETA UPSILON encompasses this four-fold purpose: to further professional interest in geography, to strengthen student and professional training, to advance the professional status of geography, and to create and administer a loan fund. To the group, variety was the keynote in activities for the year.

IOTA LAMBDA SIGMA exists to bring a closer bond between prospective industrial arts teachers and supervisors. Members of the group are well versed on a craft such as furniture making, and have knowledge of machinery. The completion of their yearly activities comes at a banquet when new members are initiated.

KAPPA DELTA PI signifies this: "Education is the Key." The national education sorority bases its project on the theme of preparing today's children for tomorrow's world. Members share an active interest in the field of education and in other functions such as the annual Christmas party held for foreign students on campus.

KAPPA MU EPSILON, the National Honorary Mathematics Fraternity, was the first chapter organized in Illinois. The organization maintains student interest in the field of mathematics, joins in social activities, and hosts a spring mathematics conference on campus, attracting acknowledged mathematicians from the Midwest.

KAPPA OMICRON PHI welcomes all home economics majors and minors who maintain above average scholastic standards. The National Honorary Home Economics Fraternity takes an active part in campus activities. The group hosts several functions with informal teas and entertains at Rambo Home Management House.

PI GAMMA MU honors social science majors and minors maintaining a three point average in the field. The problem of juvenile delinquency and conditions in South America were discussed by guest speakers obtained jointly with the Social Science Club. Members also participated in panel discussions concerning world affairs.

PI KAPPA DELTA is the honorary fraternity recognizing outstanding achievement in forensics. Members in the forensics field can achieve much personal development and expressive ability within this fraternity. The most prominent activity of the group is the thirty team invitational debate held in January on our campus.

PI OMEGA PI is composed of business majors who have above average scholastic standards in their own field as well as in their general education subjects. Monthly meetings provided social and academic activities. Guest speakers, group discussions, and informal get-togethers provided many areas of interest for all of the members.

First Row: Deana Trail, Joyce Hexdall, Linda Bergsten, Vice-president; Rose Gerken, President; Rose Marie Bogleff, Miss Lela Winegarner, Sponsor. Absent: John Martin, Treasurer; John Kennedy, Secretary.

SIGMA TAU DELTA members juggle words, phrases, sentences, and ideas into intelligent, interesting, and original compositions. The English fraternity strives to stimulate an active interest in creative writing on campus. Publishing the Triangle, a campus literary magazine, is the prominent activity of the honorary organization.

THETA ALPHA PHI unifies all the areas of the theatre with the elements of acting and directing. Sponsoring and participating in the annual spring play, "The Would Be Gentleman," was the climax of the year's activities which aimed to further appreciation and understanding of the entertaining world called "the theatre."

Epilogue

Robert G. Bone, President, Illinois State Normal University

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The Index is in a sense a mirror of one's experiences while enrolled in Illinois State Normal University. It is our hope that you, the students, will reassess your development and growth as you recall this year; that you, the teachers and parents, will see some of the many activities that go into this growth and recognize that many aspects of growth cannot be pictured.

In the years ahead may you continue your growth in educational, technical, and civic areas, and as you turn the pages of this Index, may it recall the pleasant "images of growth" while at this University.

Robert G. Bone
President

First Row:

AGRICULTURE

Dr. Harvey S. Woods, Head

Cultivation and Progress . . .

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. From the earth sprang life, a life in varied forms that enabled animals to survive on vegetation that grew upon the earth. Today, man still exists because of the beginning. In an area of approximately one hundred ninety acres, agriculture students are given an opportunity to observe and put into practice all phases of work dealing with agriculture: cultivation, tillage, agronomy, horticulture, arboriculture, and gardening. Whether he is dealing with vegetation or animal life, the student patiently observes the cycle and process of nature about him.

The epoch of life, enriched by man and his knowledge of science . . .

Art

Dr. F. Louis Hoover, Head

Delineation of Creativity . . .

An artist equipped with tools solves a vast problem concerned with line, form, color, texture, and space. Add to this the element of discipline, and the outcome is not just free expression, but guided creativity. The Art Department exposes young artists to many courses and varied approaches, molding not only an artist and educator, but a creative teacher. With mature aims and objectives held as firmly as the tools he uses to create, and with his mind and eye trained in observation and critical thinking, the alert student of art education helps to remedy the everyday concept that "art is not taught, but caught."

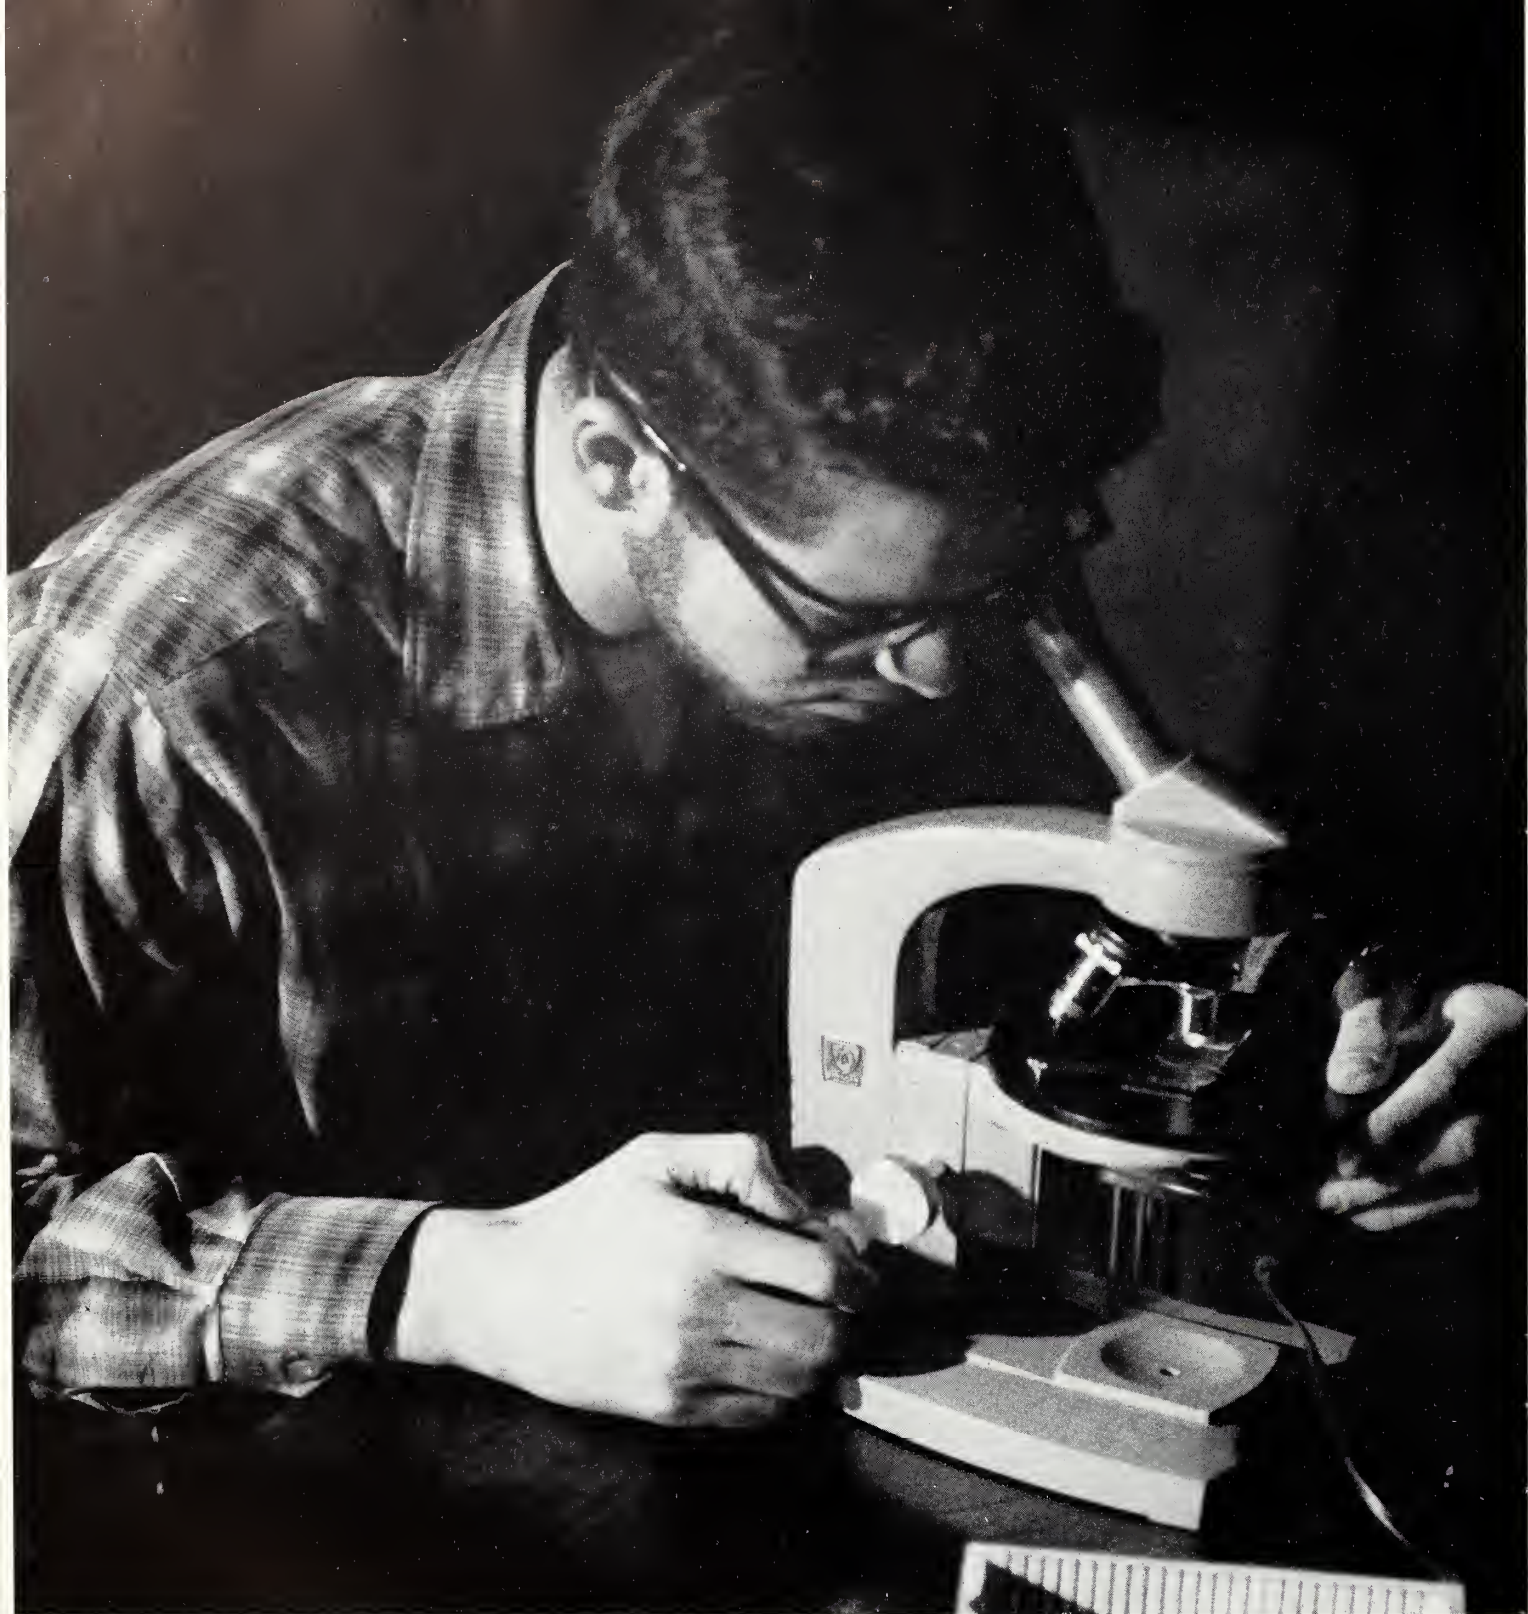

The camera glimpses the artist, his material, and creativity . . .

Intimately examining the living, kaleidoscopic elements of life . . .

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE

Dr. R. Omar Rilett, Head

and Nature . . .*

Working long hours amid the delicate clatter of glass and instruments, trying to pronounce the complicated Latin names of specimens, and acquiring a steady hand in the dissection of animals—these are the sights and sounds of the laboratory. Tramping fields, unearthing fossils, and studying plants and animals in their native habitat, the student of biology sees more than a group of animals, a clump of trees, or a field of wild flowers. To him this matter becomes the passageway of insight into the ever changing, fascinating world of nature and an increased enjoyment of the myriad of wonders in the world in which he lives.

Procedures and practices renovate themselves to new efficiency . . .

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Dr. Lewis R. Toll, Head

Procedures . . .*

The clicking of calculating machines, the buzzing of the stop clock in a typing class, or an instructor dictating stenography: all of these sounds represent the Business Education Department, which trains students in every phase of business necessary to the competent teacher. This field develops in the student the various skills in accounting and general business, and also a feeling of pride in performance. Growth for the business education major or minor is self-awareness as an essential effort for improvement. The final product is a complex fusion of subjects, perfection, skill, personalities, forms, and equipment.

EDUCATION AND PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. Frank Philpot, Head

Heredity, Environment, and Dewey . . .

The battle of heredity and the crucial elements of environment culminate in a climax when education and philosophy exert their influences. This battle is waged today in the school rooms of the nation. The student of education is not just an observer, but an active participant. Awareness, imagination, and seriousness of purpose are paramount in devising a plan as vital and as varied as education. But he does not work alone, for in any field the student is aided by thoughts and ideals of philosophers, whose common aim is to constantly improve learning and keep that rare, precious gift, "freedom of intelligence."

Supporting the structure of learning—the basics of education . . .

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

Dr. Helen M. Nance, Head

To Expose and Motivate . . .

More than the three basic "R's," more detailed than showing a child how to print the alphabet, demanding more than comprehension of subject matter: this, then, is its scope. Its challenge is unending, for the need to live a successful life is never quite fulfilled. With vision and a backbone of patience, the elementary education student pursues subject matter and child psychology. This is a necessity, as both components must work together. It is the student who studies concepts and behavior who can best calm an alarmed child, or answer quite simply the young question of innocence, "What makes the wind blow?"

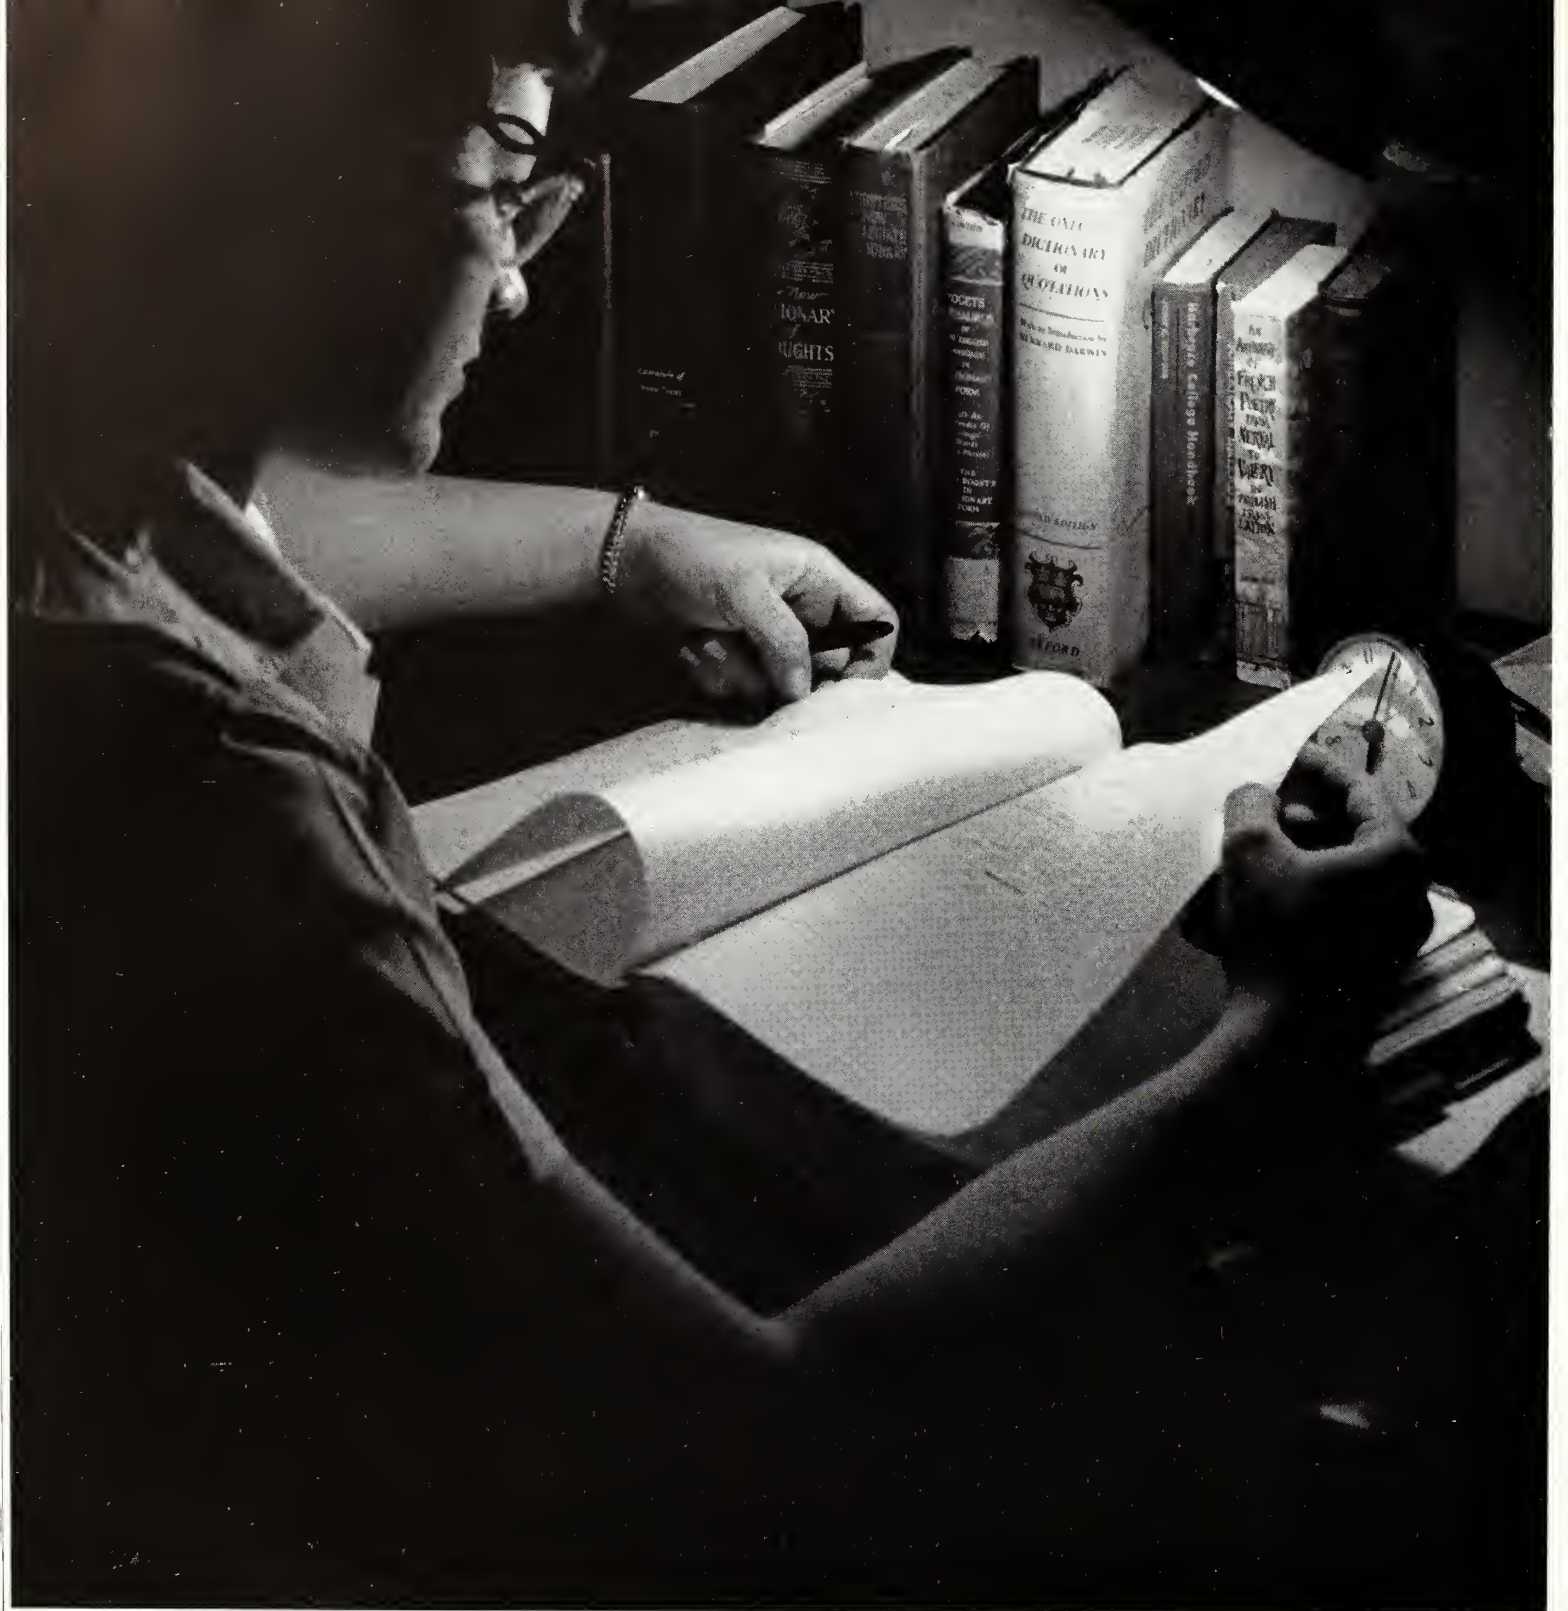

Motivation and participation result in a learning experience . . .

The assimilation and application of knowledge from ages past . . .

ENGLISH

Dr. Milford C. Jochums,
Acting Head

Power of Words . . .

One may say that the motive is knowledge, knowledge in and for itself. English majors may think more deeply and discover higher ideals from the wisdom of the past. Readers see the author as an artist painting a picture with words, words which can express beauty, show gratitude, stimulate thought, or excite the imagination. The students study the techniques of the writer whose mood and style help the person develop an individual talent, thus enriching communication. Words, sometimes mechanical, often creative, become a means of exercising one of the student's most valuable attributes—understanding.

Strange words serve as routes to understanding and appreciation . . .

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Dr. Allie W. Billingsley,
Acting Head

Conjugation and Knowledge . . .

Communication, the exchange of thoughts and opinions by words and letters. The student of foreign language finds a new appreciation for those of another culture as he gains mastery of a common bond between nationalities—speech. Pondering over the inverted arrangement of words and wondering about their origin, the student trains his mind and his tongue to adopt new mental and verbal modes. A study of language enables him to express his thoughts clearly and distinctly, to appreciate his feelings and the feelings of others, and to realize a sensitivity to the beauties of the written and spoken word.

GEOGRAPHY

Dr. Arthur Watterson, Head

Mosaic of Life . . .

Scrutiny, guided by the energies of acquired subject matter, yields new perception for the geographer. The laboratory is the earth, and its story is molded and scattered deeply into the earth's layers. A giant enigma with worldwide edges delighting and perplexing the geographer. His task begins with gathering fragments. The elements supplied by nature, such as weather and climate, are then utilized by men and formed into a mosaic of life. Geographic appraisal—living in the foundation of the earth, using its vast supply of resources, and creating superstructures for humanity.

Nature creates living textures so that man might interpret . . .

Co-ordination and control, the basic essentials of strength . . .

MEN'S HEALTH & P.E.

Dr. Clifford E. Horton, Head

and Physique . . .*

The stress and strain of the hard-pressed hours of practice, the physical exhaustion of activity, and the relaxed feeling of muscle co-ordination and control. For majors, minors, and the entire student body, the athletic program offers a diversity of activities, required and elective, to suit all individual needs and abilities. All stress the basic skills necessary and practical for physical fitness. From volleyball to swimming and from football to dancing, an aim is met when physical growth and strength co-operate and enrich the important, vital mental and social growth necessary during the four college years.

Agility and balance fuse in an experience in creative dance . . .

WOMEN'S HEALTH & P.E.

Dr. Ellen Kelly, Head

Co-ordination . . .*

Grace, agility, poise, and beauty—these are but some of the goals of majors, minors, and all other girls participating in the Women's Health and Physical Education Department. Offering courses in personal development, training students to become competent teachers, and providing extramural and intramural sports for the interested and skilled women, an extensive program of activities guides the individual toward social, mental, and physical growth in an atmosphere of congeniality. The individual soon realizes that she is one important part of a massive whole working toward improvement of the self.

HOME ECONOMICS

Dr. Florence Davis, Head

Science and the Home . .

Home: the origin of all activity. The responsible home economics major acquires skill in the domestic arts by delving into the many branches of science. She gains an understanding sureness from books, lectures, and practical experiences. Cooking and sewing become the direct application of scientific experiences to the home. Literature and language enable her to realize that the home is just one unit in a vast maze of cultures. From the old potbellied stove to the modern electronic range, homemaking art has evolved in meaning and execution from a task of drudgery to the perspective which enriches family living.

A laboratory of living and learning harmonizes with electronics . . .

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Dr. Ray Stombaugh, Head

Minds over Machines . . .

Experiencing control, striving to maintain the thin line of precision, mastering the mechanical marvels of present day: all of these are aims of the industrial arts program. To live successfully in an ever changing society, one must be aware of the importance and application of new developments. With power tools students learn creation; with ink and a block of print they experiment with communication; by manipulating pen and ruler they create man's mechanical and architectural world. Creation is sometimes objective and skilled; this then expresses the very scope and the necessity of specialized training.

Shaping nature's diversified elements with technical ability . . .

Television provides far-reaching realms for library science . . .

LIBRARY SCIENCE

Dr. Robert R. Hertel, Head

Research . . .*

Innovations of man's world are today penetrating the realm of the library, a highly mechanized machine based upon rule and order. The library science major sees the processing of library material and the evaluation of books as the gears which comprise this vast machine. He operates the library and realizes a deep appreciation for books—the fuel which keeps the machine running, and the fuel for the ambitions and aspirations of all who seek knowledge, for “Books are the quietest and the most accessible and wisest of counsellors, and the most patient of teachers.” Library Science—a tool that aids in preserving civilization.

Depth and curves create space and mathematical explorations . . .

MATHEMATICS

Dr. Clyde McCormick, Head

Dimensions . . .*

Plan, scope, and content combine and open new horizons. In these technological times, mathematics is infiltrating every phase of science, evoking the attention of those interested—the teacher, student, engineer, and scientist. A flexible program fulfills the necessities and interests of students in the field. The mathematician is familiar with his tools: symbolic language, methods of reasoning, roots, squares, equations, and illustrations and applications of mathematics. Theory and fact, two conceptions essential to progress, combine and expand to formulate in man's mind the basis for the material and abstract world.

MUSIC

Dr. Howard H. Rye, Head

Harmony and Cacophony . .

Music, that undefinable, eternal perspective in beauty, relates the past, the present, and the future through the feeling and execution of a practiced student. However, music education does more for a student than train him in musical performance; it strives for competency in understanding the procedures of method and instruction. Music: a challenging study and routine, from the vibrant tone of an instrument, to a music sheet well marked by weeks of re-phrasing, to the final performance. The study of music, its creativity, meaning, and discipline long endures, adding a rich and necessary component to everyday life.

Beauty of melody and rhythm extracted by expressive guidance . . .

PHYSICAL SCIENCE

Dr. R. U. Gooding, Head

Laboratories and Living . . .

Highways, bridges, missiles, and electronic devices do not grow from shaky foundations of trial and error. The construction is planned in detail. The capacities of minds predict the assurance of symbols, which offer opportunities to learn the principles of physics and chemistry. These principles are applied in strength to the varied experiments performed in the laboratory. Heat, sound, kinematics, electricity, magnetism, and atomic physics are the materials affecting surface tension and optical activity. Action results in ingenuity of thought and the elimination of inaccuracies and ambiguities.

Diligence and ability unite, providing experimental progress . . .

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Dr. John A. Kinneman, Head

Concepts of Entities . . .

Civilization and culture: two words whose meanings are given exhaustive research and study by social science majors. The reason is the quest for information concerning man, his history, his social patterns, and his life. Two words that enable students to understand the personality and idiosyncracies of man in the past, in the present, and in the future. Through this basic study it becomes apparent that historical trends and events are not insignificant, that they do relate, and when this relationship occurs, a pattern is then formed for the campus to interpret and gain a vital insight into life around them.

Probing contemporary man, his society, and historical roots . . .

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Dr. Harold R. Phelps, Head

Educating the Exceptional . . .

A brace, a pair of glasses, a hearing aid, or a Braille writer are not symbols for sympathy. Instead, they are tools which the child and teacher use with increasing effect in the learning process. With guidance, the handicapped child, whether his handicap be visual, auditory, mental, orthopedic, or speech defective, does find a place in society. His position involves many struggles and numerous defeats. Teachers in this field are prepared to understand and to meet with patience the handicapped physically, mentally, educationally, emotionally, or socially, and to help him meet his problems with competency and success.

Learning expressed with pictures, sounds, and word formations . . .

SPEECH

Dr. Charles White, Head

Expressing Verbal Images . . .

The spoken word, a constantly used device that is formulated in the mind and becomes, with proper inflection and gesture, a thing of beauty. Speech contributes to logical thinking and persuasion, coloring the mind with the interpretive thoughts of a poem or story, and calling forth emotions and images from an audience witnessing a play. As an expression, speech is challenging and rewarding and offers potentialities to the orator, debater, interpreter, and actor. Speech students experiment, formulate, and phrase the spoken word until it becomes a unique meeting place for comprehension and communication.

Providing drama to the written word in an impromptu rehearsal . . .

John Orolin captures the quizzical expressions of some kindergarten children as their student teacher, Sharon Palmer, tells a story.

Student Teaching: The culmination of four years . . .

To remain in the University laboratory system or to brave the unknown by going off campus is the first decision to be made by the senior when completing his requirements for graduation.

As the student approaches his teaching assignment on the fateful day, varied emotions rush pell-mell through his mind: pride, anxiety, fear, and confidence. Pride . . . as he realizes that he is joining what can be one of the most rewarding professions, he stands to face his first class, anticipating achievement and success in his college career. Anxiety . . . as he questions himself, "Will I be able to assume these new duties with the skill and ingenuity necessary? How will I be accepted by the student body? What does it feel like to be, after all these years, on the other side of that desk?" Fear . . . as he contemplates his influence on young lives, knowing that the students may not fully understand, and feeling that even after four years of study, he may not be capable. Confidence . . . as he stimulates the interest of his class, as their bright faces beam and a promise of lasting relationship buds. Sara Teasdale wrote of children's faces . . . holding wonder like a cup." These and many other conflicting ideas mingle in the active mind, primed for a new "learning experience." As the time elapses, confidence within the self increases. The full meaning of the oft-repeated, yet heretofore abstract terminology of the Education Department—lesson plans, philosophy of education, and short term objectives—suddenly takes on concreteness in the mind of the neophyte educator.

Sharon Reedy learns from physical therapist Marjorie Martin that patience is a necessary asset in teaching the handicapped child.

Trigonometric jargon, tangent curves, and the relationship of  $x$  and  $y$  result in some raised hands for student teacher Matt Bazik.

The lessons are taught. The pupils are examined for purposes of both pupil and teacher evaluation. Seemingly an infinite number of conferences with supervisors occur.

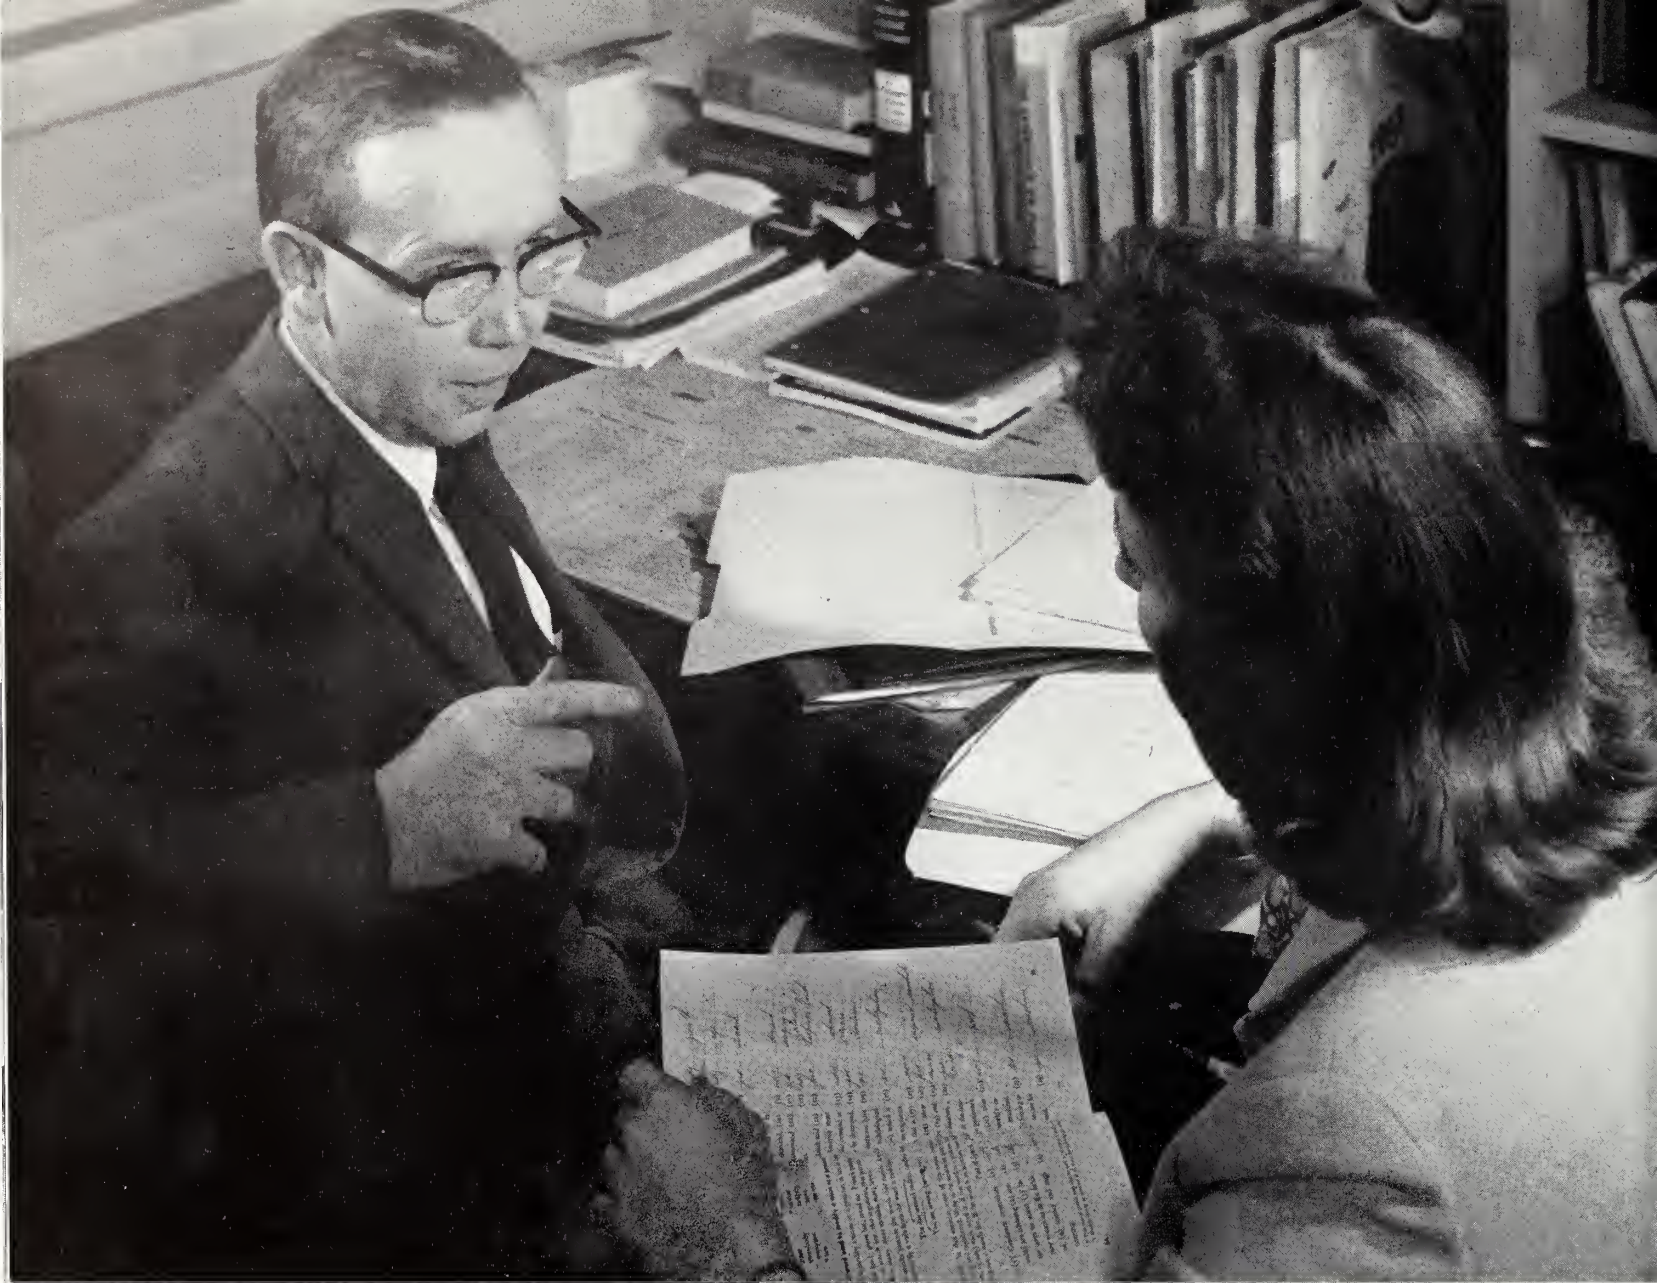

Throughout the entire activity, learning takes place. The profession seems more lofty as the teacher realizes a sense of responsibility. An awareness in understanding of student needs, collectively and individually, increases as daily contact is made in the classroom. Growth is the applying of that which an individual learns in the higher halls of learning, stemming from general education, then branching into professional education, where competency is demanded.

Through the use of visual aids, student teacher, Mary Matteson, illustrates the importance of texture in design while a group of eighth grade students listen. Providing experiences and informational lectures is part of the role a student teacher plays.

Mr. Brome of the English Department evaluates some of the aspects of Marilyn Weith's student teaching methods at a critic meeting.

Experience and Appraisal

It is essential to understand that student teaching is not just being in command of a class. This senior year experience demands much more than classroom procedure and technique. Countless hours are spent on the "little things," which mark the difference between the teacher and the good teacher. Most important of these numerous activities is the critic conference which involves, among other things, honesty and tact. It is in these conferences that the neophyte teacher learns his progress, his strong points and his weak ones. Compiling data, progress reports, preparing bulletin board displays as visual aids, and lesson plans, are a mere indication of the complexity of student teaching.

As the first teaching assignment draws to a close, the Illinois State Normal University candidate for a Bachelor's Degree in Education is the possessor of new insight into John Dewey's educational ideal, "We learn by doing."

Dr. Sorenson points out the requirements and procedures of a Master's thesis to graduate students Bob Srencik and Marilyn Crabtree.

Graduate School: Transforming the Student Into the Scholar . . .

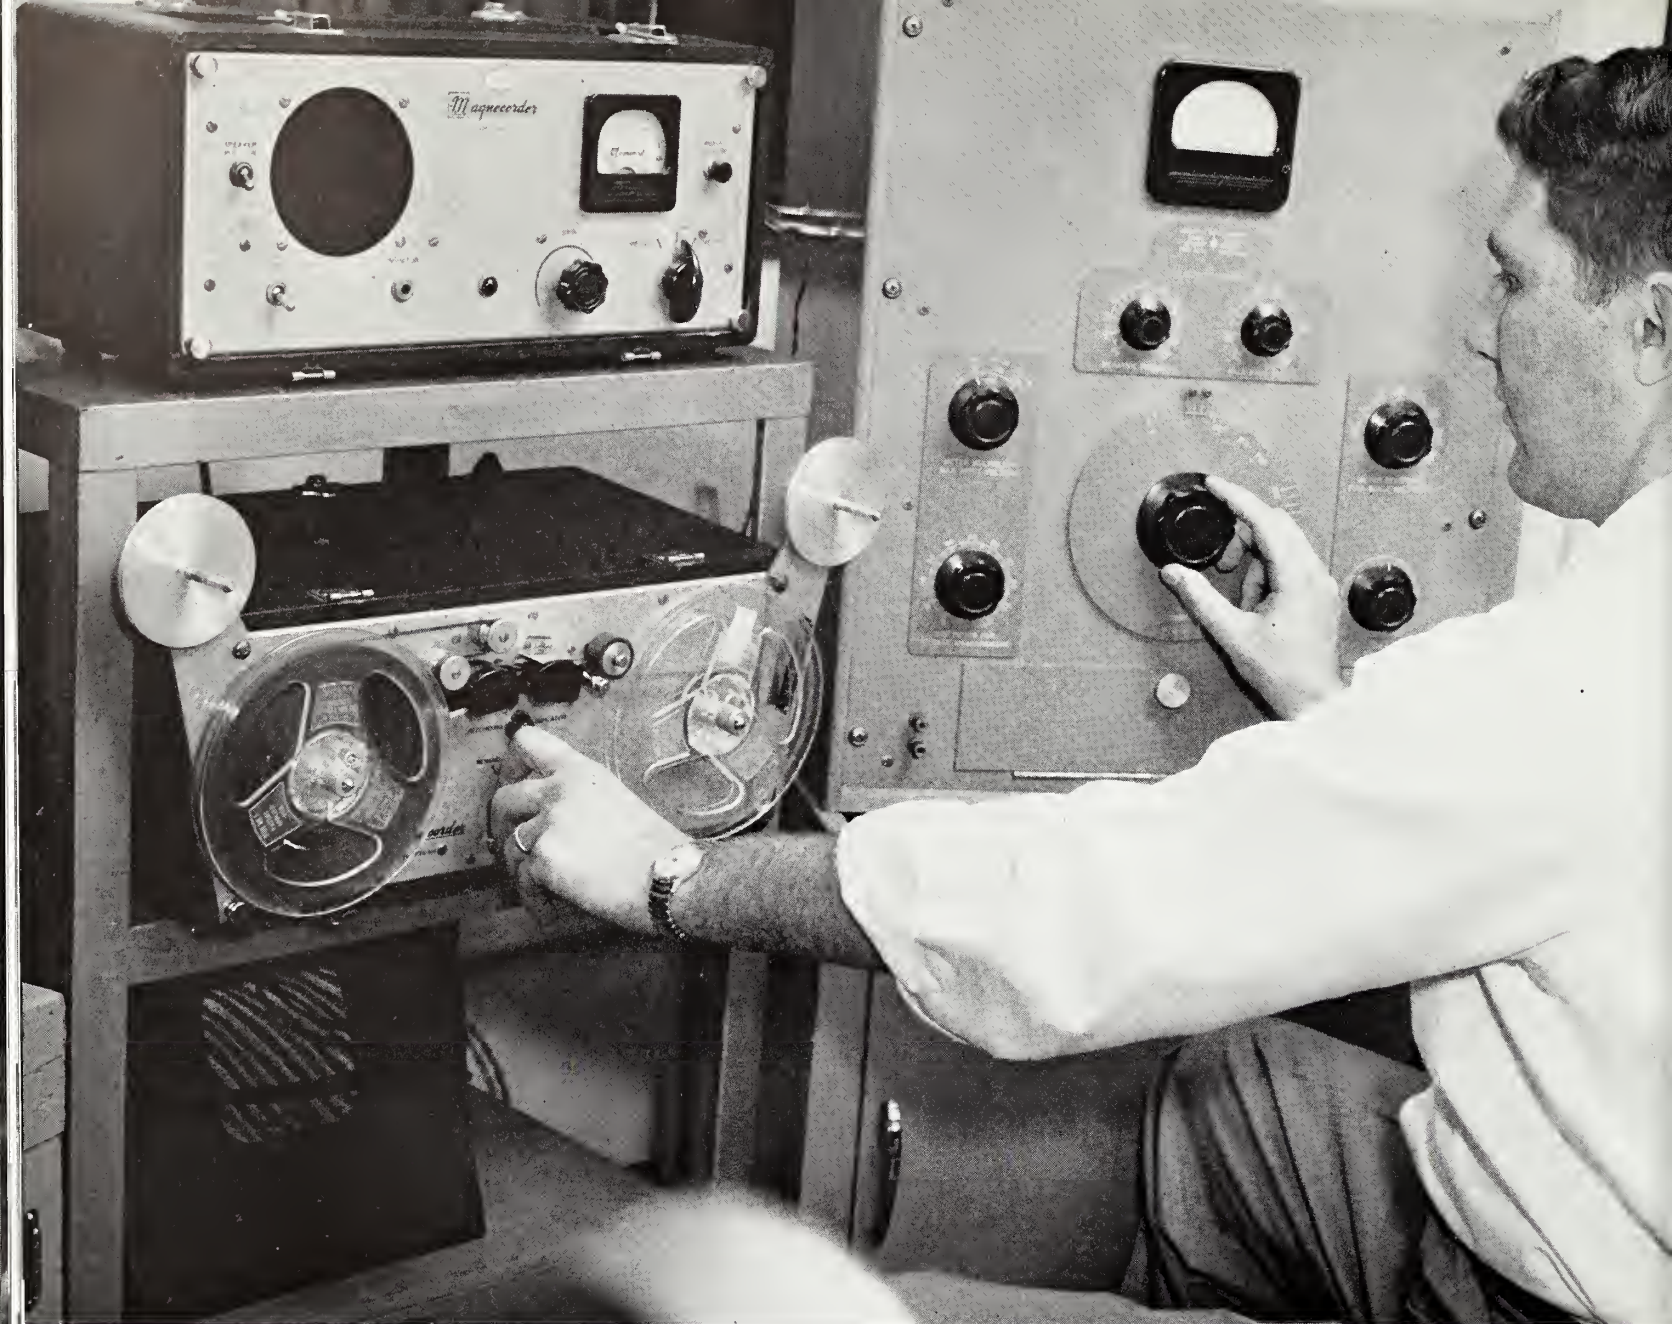

Furthering his study for mastery of his subject, the graduate student devotes many hours, his efforts, and past experience to meet requirements of the graduate year by presenting a research project or completing two or more creditable papers or creative projects.

With different study and original research he realizes that there is no room for lack of purpose or ability. His original thoughts grow from specialized classes; here he comprehends the meaning of dedication—delving deeper, beyond the optional, to gain sureness and insight into his subject. Such projects as “The Reading Problems of the Sixth Grade,” and “Treatment of the Exceptional Child” stimulate his imagination and deepen his knowledge. Projects and research are not isolated, as they have direct application to the situations which will arise in his later life. With his varied experiences and background, the graduate student is well prepared to meet them.

The University considers and provides for all of the graduate students' interests, needs, and abilities in preparing competent teachers, school administrators, and supervisors. Providing programs of graduate study leading to the degree of Master of Science in Education, Illinois State Normal University has as its goal the production of master teachers for elementary schools, secondary schools, and junior colleges. Students aspiring to become administrators and supervisors find specific curricula available for the individual. Meeting the pressing and urgent needs in the field of a special education, a special curriculum also provides technical preparation for teaching the mentally retarded, the physically handicapped, the deaf and hard of hearing, the partially sighted, and the speech deficient.

Graduate course offerings serve not only the needs of students who desire the degree of Master of Science in education, but also meet the needs of the growing number of students wishing to continue their professional preparation or broaden their general educational experiences without reference to requirements for a degree.

Graduate School: a detailed experimental proving ground, a transformation, a phoenix, and a fusion of diligence and knowledge.

Schemers and Dreamers . . .

Scheming toward the ever-present goal of raising funds for class usage and dreaming of the rapidly approaching day when such collegiate activities will be completed, representatives of the class of 1960 combined mental powers in an attempt to increase the significance of their final year.

Working on the Senior Advisory Board was, to some, the culmination of four years of service in an advisory capacity for class activities. To others, it was a first attempt in participating in this type of student government. Advisory Board members will agree that meetings provided an opportunity for stimulating discussions on various topics pertinent to senior activities, an occasion for co-operative enterprise, the chance to experience the feeling of a job well done when each project draws to a close.

Satirizing campus life and personnel in the form of a Senior Take-off Skit provided a bit of levity for those who attended the production at Capen. The class presented the skit to entertain and to reinstate a pleasant, old tradition.

Not content to be dictated to by tradition, the Advisory Board advocated the plan of changing the hour of graduation from the afternoon to morning. It is hoped that cooler temperatures as well as temperaments will prevail during graduation services. The class sponsored a Fall Workday, designed primarily to serve the community and, incidentally, to increase the treasury for class gift purposes. Working in yards, removing screens, and the washing and putting up of storm windows were the services provided by the senior workers. ## SOPHOMORE ADVISORY BOARD

Planners and Plotters . . .

With twenty-seven pairs of hands joined together to ease the work and complete the job, the Sophomore Advisory Board members still had plenty to do. As Sophomore leaders of the Class, their activities during the year were many: the selling of megaphones for basketball games, designing an original queen's float for the Homecoming parade, sponsoring two informal record dances, and planning a successful spring Sophomore Cotillion. What was the final outcome of all of this? As one member put it, "Organized chaos!"

FRESHMAN ADVISORY BOARD Designers and Devisers . . .

The main purpose of the Freshman Advisory Board was to familiarize themselves with the entire freshman class. Leading the calendar of events, the Class sponsored a successful all school Sock Hop, the first dance of its type ever held on campus. Look out for the Class of '63!

Officers: Sharon Shaner, Secretary; Bill Vander Waal, Vice-president; Gary Tumulty, President; and Jim Webb, Treasurer.

AND THIS IS BUT THE BEGINNING . . .

Only empty chairs will remain as four meaningful years draw to a climax. Four years which have unfolded a richness of life, a complexity that has created marked impressions on the lives of the Class of 1960. Four mellowing years filled with the excitement of discernment. Four years, each one a stepping stone to the other and tomorrow—tomorrow, a life of independence, patterned with vivid impressions and images of ideas and principles. Four years cultivated with both certainty and doubt and suddenly the opportunity to put everything into practice. A challenge? Yes, it is, but a much less challenge than it was four years ago—that span of time which formulated the foundations of growth. A period of very precious molding, softly, subtly formed to create the nucleus of a person.

Index '60 portrays the Images of Growth, but it cannot depict the results. The vast length and breadth of the entire world is opening, and the opportunity for expression and contribution awaits. To the graduates, an era of sheltered academic learning looks on as another world of reality beckons . . . Farewell and Welcome!

Ron Hefler, Editor
1960 Index

The Index has been completed and the staff relaxes, contemplating the distributing of the yearbook. Miss Vermell Wise, Sponsor, leafs through the book with the editorial staff: Charlotte Corray, Dennis Aulenbacher, Ron Heffler, Dave Sullivan, Marilyn Weith, and Marlene Kern.

THE STAFF . . .

A yearbook is more than just an activity; it is a construction, a creation which has as its scope the entire campus. Obviously, it is quite a task, and one that is year long, consuming many hours, using many hands. Through this experience we have gained many things, but the simplest and most important reward for the 1960 Index, its workers, and its Images of Growth is your approval.
